Ammadinah (Qur'an) Ammah (Arabic for "attention, benevolence") or Ammadinah () is an Arabic word that in the Qur'an is preceded by the phrase "Ammah l-ruhafa ar-rahmina" (presumably meaning "the attention of [the] merciful towards the oppressed") and is translated as "pardon". The word is also translated as "to pardon", and "recompense". The word is first mentioned in sura 2, ayah 134 of the Qur'an. The word "amr" has a wider meaning of "compassion", "kindness" and "mercy".

Synchronization of parallel coupled chaotic systems. The idea of synchronization in systems of coupled oscillators has attracted much interest in recent years. Several methods to obtain full synchronization in deterministic chaotic systems have been presented. The mechanisms of synchronization are based on the methods of control and the introduction of error terms to the system. In this paper, we present a method for obtaining partial or full synchronization in a class of systems of several coupled identical chaotic oscillators using an external bichaos. The method is based on an array of coupled chaotic systems with Lyapunov functions. The results obtained are applicable to the synchronization of nonlinear microelectromechanical systems and to control of the chaos arising in some distributed and parallel coupled systems.

Q: "asked to" or "told to" Which sentence is correct: "They asked me to do it." or "They told me to do it." A: Either is correct. "Told" is more formal. "Asked" sounds more natural. So I would probably write the sentence as: They told me to do it. as far as the difference in meaning, this page seems to give the general idea. package tools import ("io" "os" "gop
